

Collaborative & Proactive Solutions

Collaborative & Proactive Solutions (CPS) is an evidence-based, non-punitive, non-exclusionary, trauma-informed model of care that helps caregivers identify and collaboratively and proactively solve the problems that cause students' concerning behaviors. Based on research that has accumulated over the past 40 to 50 years, the model posits that kids respond poorly to problems and frustrations because of lagging skills (not lagging motivation, faulty learning, or flawed parenting practices). In schools, the CPS model has been shown to dramatically reduce concerning behavior and the use of punitive disciplinary practices, including discipline referrals, detentions, suspensions, restraints, and seclusion.
